Seconds before her big moment when she was to be presented to the lieutenant-governor, Joan Anderson received a whisper of assurance from her escort, Peter Napper. The statement produced the smiles—and eased

World Reds' Party Line Still Peace

LONDON (CP)—Communist parties of 64 nations Friday night published a made-in-Moscow peace manifesto.

They appealed to the world to stop the arms race, ban nuclear weapons and abandon military bloc policies.

"We are extending our hands to all people of goodwill," the manifesto said. "Jointly we will throw off the burden of armament which suppresses the people. We will free the world from the danger of war, death and destruction. Before us is a bright and happy future of mankind, which is advancing toward progress."

Backers of the manifesto included the Yugoslavs, who had declined to join the representatives of 12 other Communist nations in signing a declaration of unity in Moscow this week.

In Moscow, Yugoslav Ambassador Veljko Micunovic said the Yugoslavs did not sign the declaration "because we did not agree with it."

B.C. Police Hunt Hooded Bandits

VANCOUVER (CP)—A trio of blue-hooded bandits are being hunted by police throughout the lower mainland area of British Columbia.

Thwarted in a raid on a small store in Newton, one of the hooded thugs fired a shotgun point-blank at grocer George Humphreys.

The shot missed his face and plowed into the wall behind him.

Humphreys, who routed the bandits with a home-made knife, said later he would buy a pistol so he can "shoot first and ask questions afterwards."

Thursday night two hooded thugs armed with a shotgun robbed a store of $30 in Surrey Centre.

Missed the Moon

U.S. Rockets Pellets to Sun

BEDFORD, Mass. (UP)—The U.S. Air Force announced yesterday it had fired artificial meteors so high they were probably sucked toward the face of the sun, some 92,000,000 miles away.

If so, an air force spokesman said he believed it was the first man had ever penetrated interplanetary space.

MOON WASN'T THERE

The air force claimed that the pellets could have hit the moon in 10 hours only if the moon wasn't in the right place at the time, and that with nothing to stop them the pellets went all the way to the sun.

The air force said the man made shooting stars were launched over New Mexico on Oct. 16, just 12 days after Russia rocketed man's first artificial satellite aloft.

Scientists here refused to speculate on a possible link between the meteors and flying saucer reports.

40,000 MPH

The announcement said the meteors were kicked off from a rocket 54 miles above the earth at a speed of 40,000 miles an hour.

NOT CIRCLING EARTH

Unlike the satellites, which are orbiting around the world, the two pellets that were tracked are not whirling around the earth but darted out into space.

The meteors were fired from an Aerobee rocket, giving off a light 5,000 times brighter than the Soviet satellites.

The announcement said the meteors probably have "gone into inter-planetary space." A scientist estimated they would reach the sun, speeding ever faster as they came closer, "in about another month."

ONLY TWO TRACKED

According to the announcement, the velocity required to crash out of the earth's gravitational pull is 25,000 miles an hour, some 15,000 miles an hour slower than the meteors.

Air force scientist Maurice Dubin said only two of the ball bearing-size aluminum pellets were taken to meet Prime Minister Harold Macmillan at No. 10 Downing Street by Canadian High Commissioner George Drew.

In London, Dr. L. R. Shepherd, chairman of the council of the British Interplanetary Society, said the launching of the artificial meteor was "unimportant and trivial" compared with the Soviet satellites.

SPACENIKS

The announcement caused no surprise among Germans, who already have a name for the flying objects, "Spaceniks." "Spaet" is German for late.

PATRIOTIC

After the meeting, Churchill said, "Our mission represents firms whose purchasing power is in the realm of hundreds of millions of dollars, and includes executives who can influence purchases in the direction of Great Britain if they are convinced British goods are competitive."

WILL SELL THEM

The gentleman, who describes himself as "quite an art collector" and past his fifties, said he will sell the drawings if he can "and buy other paintings I can afford."

A Reuters agency story from Erlangen, West Germany, last night said Mr. Klaverwyden had bought the sketches from a Victoria antique dealer. The story quoted Dr. Paulus as saying they might be worth $465,000.

Mr. Klaverwyden said he bought the sketches at an auction here (but he wouldn't say where), for a small sum (but he wouldn't say how little).

WORTH FORTUNE

Mr. Klaverwyden said he took the drawing to several experts . . . "you go to 10 you get 20 different answers."

He finally sent photostats and then the drawings to Dr. Paulus and after a long study . . . "they photograph and study every eye, every ear, every nose . . . their worth was proven."

GOYA AT 22

Difficulty in determining whether they were Goya's work was due to fact his greatest works were done when he was in his fifties, and these sketches were done when he was about 22, Mr. Klaverwyden said.

Mr. Klaverwyden said he was born in Amsterdam and lived for 21 years in China, working for Shell Oil Co. He came to the B.C. mainland in 1939, spending several winters on the Island. He moved here in 1948.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

CONFIDENTIAL, the celebrated muck-raking magazine that recently figured in a libel suit, has taken on a far more kindly tone since its ordeal has ended in a trial that has ended in a draw.

The magazine has scarcely a bad word to say about anybody. The current issue spreads sunbeams into some corners of society that were formerly believed to be somewhat dark and mouldy.

Even "Lucky" Luciano, former Italo-American racketeer now living in exile in Italy, isn't a bad fellow when you get to know him, Confidential informs its readers.

This may well be true, but I never expected to read it in Confidential, which until recently was dedicated to the proposition that the world is populated mainly by cheats, perverts and nymphomaniacs, and that people are just no good.

Mrs. Phyllis M. Shepherd of 231 23rd Avenue N.W., Calgary, writes to express regret for the dog in the Russian space satellite.

"In this day and age it seems as if the majority of people have no sympathy whatever for suffering animals," she says. "Every cruelty is condoned in the name of science."

"I do not think St. Francis, the patron saint of animals, would have a very high opinion of the cleric (certainly not 'divine') who stated that people are 'more valuable' than animals."

"... It would be preferable to shoot aloft a criminal condemned to die (or a man with an incurable disease) than to experiment with one of God's dumb animals. The human being could, of course, volunteer to go—not be forced to make the trip like the poor animal..."

D. M. Harnsworth asks how the subject of a recent Colonist magazine article was married in 1935, and yet had a son fighting in the Irish Guards in the Second World War.

Can it be that the lad was commissioned in the Guards at the age of 10, this reader asks.

The fault was in the article, which omitted to mention that the subject had been married before. The Guards' officer was a son by the previous marriage.

A Montreal company is going to put out a mattress with a "Sputnik" design on it. A picture of the new pattern appears on the front page of the trade journal Home Goods Retailing.

Cecil Clark, former deputy commissioner of provincial police, is not easily shocked by minor crimes. However, he is a professional writer now, and one of the misdemeanors that pains him is an assault on the English language.

He came into this office recently, shaking with rage about monstrous words that had been let loose by verbal Frankensteins in Seattle.

One was "clamorama," meaning a big feast of clams, and the other was "boatathon." The latter does not mean—as it vaguely suggests—a boat race, but a sale of boats at bargain prices.

"Where is it going to end?" Mr. Clark asks. In wild orgy of word-making, or gobbledegookathon, which will produce a new language, Doubletalkarama.

Husband's Cash Value Issue in Court Case

Judgment was reserved yesterday in a Supreme Court case in which a widow is seeking compensation for the traffic death of her husband Dec. 27, 1955.

Mr. Justice Sullivan listened to arguments concerning the monetary value of a husband to his wife, when Mrs. Jasper Joseph Charles appeared before him to seek compensation under the Families' Compensation Act.

Her husband, 55 year-old chief of the Becher Bay Indian tribe, died three hours after being injured in a collision between a truck he was driving and a private car at Catherine and Johnson Streets.

Chief Charles was thrown to the street, and rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from head and internal injuries.

The widow, Caroline Cecilia Charles, told the court her husband had earned $3,000 in 1953, about $1,964 in 1954 and, up to the time of his death, $13,40 a day in steady employment at a sawmill.

Mrs. Charles told the court that her husband had always earned enough to provide for her and their family. She was receiving no help, she said, from the department of Indian affairs; only family allowance for her younger children.

She said she had received some proceeds from her husband's estate, but added that these were now exhausted.

'Butcher' Killer Judged Insane

WAUTOMA, Wis.—"Butcher" killer Ed Gein has been ordered committed to a mental institution and authorities say they will dig up the women's graves he claims he robbed.

If doctors decide that Gein, 51, the self-confessed murderer of two women, is insane, he will probably never stand trial on charges of shooting Mrs. Bernice Warden, 58, and butchering her decapitated body in his macabre "house of horrors."

VANCOUVER—Deputy highways minister Evan Jones says photographs of mutilated bodies taken at the scene of car accidents should be shown to drivers guilty of traffic violations.

HOLLYWOOD—Actor Errol Flynn has been cleared of a drunk charge growing out of his "joke" stealing of a policeman's badge at a screen publicist's ball last month. Charges against his companion, Dublin-born actress Maura Fitzgibbons, 21, were also dismissed.

OTTAWA—Canadian historian Dr. Gustave Lanctot says the Irish discovered North America "not the Vikings, not John Cabot and not Jacques Cartier," after being blown off course en route from Iceland to Greenland.

NEW ORLEANS—Dr. Will Menninger, psychiatrist from Topeka, Kan., says government-run mental hospitals in the U.S. are a disgrace. He called them "human warehouses," and said "60 percent of their population never comes out alive."

WINNIPEG—Dr. John T. Wilson of the University of Toronto, president of the International Union of Geodesy and Geophysics, says "If mankind would start worrying a bit more about mankind and stop worrying about an unfortunate dog (in Russia's Sputnik) the people on this earth would be a lot better off."

BUFFALO, N.Y.—James V. La Duce's presence last week at a gangland meeting in Apalachin, N.Y., has cost him his $250-a-week job as secretary-treasurer of Buffalo Local 66, Hotel and Restaurant Workers' Union. International president of the union said "we don't condone that type of individual in our union."

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay—Former president Luis Batlle Berres and Gen. Juan P. Ribas were injured in a sabre duel they fought to settle political differences. Both refused a reconciliation after the encounter.

OAKLAND, Calif.—Selection of a jury of eight women and four men opened the way for testimony to begin in a $600,000 polio vaccine damage suit against Cutter Laboratories. Polio left Anna Elizabeth Gottsdanker, 7, with a paralyzed right leg and James Phipps, 4, with a paralyzed right shoulder. Their parents say the children contracted the disease after being vaccinated with faulty Cutter vaccine about two years ago.

SALEM, Ore.—The sixth commandment, "Thou shalt not kill," will be printed on Oregon automobile drivers' licences in the future, says James F. Johnson, state director of motor vehicles.

'Next War in Space'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The air force's production chief believes the next major war will be fought in "air space ships."

Lt.-Gen. C. S. Irvine said that in the next major conflict "control of space will determine victory."

Irvine, deputy air force chief of staff for materiel said "withpulsion systems have the capability to place a satellite in orbit."

The air force is concentrating on present weapons for the nation's defense and for instant retaliation if attacked. Irvine said. But he said it also is engaged in "active research" on both "manned ballistic missiles and the so-called space platforms."

Three Scenic Loops

THE suggestion by the Vancouver Island Chambers of Commerce that the provincial government should take advantage of idle grading and other road machinery in the hands of the timber industry this winter to make headway on the highway system in co-operation with owners of the equipment is interesting for a number of reasons. First, the opportunity of unused equipment would seem to be present. Then highway work, where it could proceed in winter, would provide one outlet for displaced workers during the normal seasonal slowdown attended as it is at present by some unexpected stoppage of work. The problem, however, may be the funds available in the highway program this late in the fiscal year.

While respecting these considerations, our interest in the suggestion springs from realization that with this added spurt arising out of the conditions of the times Vancouver Island's road network could be brought to an advanced stage of really productive return. Under Mr. Gagliardi, the highways department laid down an ambitious plan for Island communications. The government linked up with industry to secure a start in several otherwise inaccessible areas still under logging operations. The province itself was to fill in the gaps. The scheme began well and was received with enthusiasm. Some parts of the network have advanced but others have not. As yet there is no through-connection on any of the three potential scenic loop routes.

These are the West Coast road, with its intended return lateral; the San Juan Valley route via Cowichan Lake or Shannigan, and north of the Alberni Canal the Tofino road via Kennedy Lake. While all three are linked in with the main development of Vancouver Island's road system, they are distinct assets by themselves. When the whole plan can be completed there will be a number of first-class highway loops on the Island through some of the most magnificent scenery anywhere in Western Canada. No one expects that this can be achieved overnight, but that it could be pushed ahead to good advantage in the coming months is an entirely reasonable pleading.

This paper long has agreed that development of the east coast artery towards the north end of the Island is an essential undertaking, and some progress has been made in that direction. It is the cross-country lateral linking roads, however, which will integrate the whole system and help to make it contributive to the economy of the whole region. One thing in favor of the chambers' proposal, if funds are available, is that any such outlay made by the province would be a returnable and permanent form of investment. The Island's population is growing fast, and communications must be kept abreast of the needs.

The Satellites Are the Test

A PROMINENT U.S. industrialist, Mr. Cyrus S. Eaton, gave a press interview this week in Toronto that must have pleased Russia greatly. As he sees it, apparently his own country is the jingoist state whereas the Soviet Union is no longer a threat to the rest of the world. It may be true that talk of war comes too easily to American lips but this might result from realization that it is the U.S. which would carry the main burden in any future conflict.

It is at least strange, even allowing for Mr. Dulles' verbal peccadilloes, to have him compared with the Kaiser of 1914 with regard to pride, arrogance and truculence, if by this is meant that Russian leaders betray no such boastfulness themselves. Mr. Eaton must surely be forgetting the bombast of Mr. Khrushchev and others of the Kremlin hierarchy. They can manage even in the same speech to threaten as well as coax. Also, if the U.S. press can be faulted for anti-Russian attitudes the oft anti-American attitude of Pravda can scarcely be overlooked.

Mr. Eaton is of the opinion that the Russians have given up hope of making the world Communist. Would that this were so, but diplomats at their wits' end to keep the peace in the Middle East are not likely to agree with him, for if the Soviet Union stayed its hand in that region there would be much less upset than there is. North America may be proof against extensive Communist penetration but there is ample evidence of Soviet success in other places. It is not easy to agree either that if the West stopped competing in armaments the Soviet Union would meet it half-way. All the indications are that the West would have to go three-quarters of the way, and farther.

Quite probably Russia is as much on the defensive as the West, but if as Mr. Eaton suggests the Soviet Union is no longer imperialistic then one quite simple test would make this clear and put Russian intentions beyond doubt. The satellite nations of Europe held captive by force to Moscow direction could be given their physical and political freedom. So long as they are not, however, so long will there be leave to regard Russia with suspicion and reluctance to absolve it of imperialistic aims.

Protective Color for Hunters

ALREADY this hunting season eight men have been shot to death in the woods in this province. In several instances it has been shown at the subsequent inquests that the victims of these shocking mistakes were wearing inconspicuous clothing. At Duncan this week during an inquiry into the shooting of a hunter mistaken for a deer the coroner himself said the color of the clothing worn by the victim, exhibited to the jury, resembled that of a wild deer.

This tragic occurrence and others before it where circumstances were similar strongly support the recommendation of the coroner's jury at Duncan that the British Columbia Game Act should be amended to require all hunters to wear brightly colored clothing in the woods. The rider was added to the jury's verdict after the coroner had commented that to the best of his knowledge this is the only province in Canada whose game laws do not contain any such stipulation.

Experienced and prudent hunters for their own safety usually do wear caps and jackets, or at least caps, of a color distinguishable against backgrounds of rock and foliage, but many others go hunting in knitted caps and khaki or other dull colored coats which are a form of camouflage instead of being conspicuous.

If the authorities can be convinced that regulations in this connection have become imperative, thought should be given to selection of the most suitable color. Red is commonly used by safety-conscious hunters here, but experiments elsewhere all tend to establish yellow as the color most easily distinguishable out-of-doors. Extensive tests carried out recently in different parts of the United States, including areas where the surroundings are similar to those of B.C., proved to the satisfaction of game authorities, optometrists and the U.S. army that under all conditions of light and terrain yellow when worn for protection stood out most noticeably.

Interpreting the News:

Tito Plays It in the Middle

By ED SIMON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

FOR eight years President Tito has steered Yugoslav foreign policy through a perilous and uncharted channel.

His chances of survival seemed slim when he first broke with the Russians in 1949. A Communist dictator cut off from the main spring of communism, he was in imminent danger from subversion at home and hostility abroad.

Skilful diplomacy and ironclad repression saw him through the early years. Russian agents found the Yugoslav people more interested in nationalism than ideology and failed to shake Tito's rule. And the West, intent on exploiting any division within the Communist bloc, was ready with military and economic aid.

West Germany immediately broke off diplomatic relations with Belgrade and many Westerners were ready to write off Yugoslavia as an independent power.

But there have been recent indications that Tito's hand is still at the wheel.

His spokesmen still pursue their own line in the United Nations séances. He has kept up cordial relations with Greece and Turkey. And his economic officials have made cautious overtures toward association with the European "market," which the Russians have frequently denounced as a capitalist plot against world peace.

While denunciation of the renegade continued to thunder out of Moscow, Tito settled his differences with Italy over Trieste and signed a defence treaty with Greece and Turkey. Much as the West disliked communism, it was prepared to live with its new ally.

Tito's next round of difficulties began when

Nootka Church

By FRANK KELLEY

CONSIDERABLE romance, coupled with a plain unvarnished story of Christian service, originated about the time the first Roman Catholic Mission was founded on the northwest coast of America at Friendly Cove, Nootka Sound, by several Franciscan padres. They included Crispin and Pena, who arrived there with Captain Juan Perez on the Santiago in 1789, and were joined shortly after that same year by Padre Catala, who had been requested by the viceroy of Mexico, Don Flores, to establish a Spanish colony at Cueva de Los Amigos (Friendly Cove), where the missionaries are said to have remained, after building the mission church, until Spain abandoned Nootka in 1795.

Although Spain was more or less forced to give up the possibility of promoting a colony based on such important natural resources as fish and furs, the Nootkans were considered worthy of attention as the years passed. There were, however, few visits recorded there of travelling servants of the church for some 50 years, or until such time as the oldest mission of the church in that part of America was to be revived. Then at the request of settlers in the Oregon area, who asked for religious observance facilities, Bishop J. Signay of Quebec sent two chosen subjects to minister to the country west of the Rocky Mountains. They were Blanchott and Demers. The territory stipulated for their services extended all the way from the Spanish missions of California to the Russian settlements beyond Vancouver Island.

Blanchott and Demers were to use canoes and horses for transport purposes from Quebec to Fort Vancouver at the mouth of the Columbia River, where they arrived and were welcomed by Chief Factor Douglas of the Hudson's Bay Company in the year 1838. When the company moved to Victoria, Blanchott and Demers devoted most of their active hours to getting acquainted with the western lands. In 1847 he was appointed Bishop of Vancouver Island, the Queen Charlotte Islands and some of western Alaska.

In all that area Demers when appointed had neither churches, priests nor chapels. In making his early rounds Nootka was not overlooked, and at Friendly Cove he learned much from elderly natives who recalled memories of the original Franciscan missionaries, while professing an interest in the Catholic faith.

There were also some memories of the Spanish occupation still lingering in the folklore of Cueva de Los Amigos when Bishop Seghers and Father Brabant acquired some land on the original mission site of Santa Cruz in the 1890s for the purpose of erecting a little church on a small promontory overlooking the waters of Friendly Cove. There the writer was to see a young Belgian priest rehearsing devotional rites on several mornings while waiting there for the Victoria-bound steamer. The storekeeper informed me he was a very devout priest, lived his work, and was a great favorite with the native flock.

Latest church news to emanate from the historic centre tells of a new church being built on the old site. It is to be ninety feet in length and will be known as St. Plus, after Pope Pius X, now St. Plus, who apparently corresponded with the natives of Friendly Cove, which Perez named De Los Remedios when the two Franciscans planted a cross there, with much ceremony, in 1789.

Reports from Ottawa

THE Diefenbaker government's bold action to help the Maritime provinces pull themselves abreast of the rest of Canada in an economic sense illustrates an important difference between this government and the previous administration.

The Liberals were primarily concerned, it seemed, with improving social conditions in accordance with the St. Laurent concept of a minimum standard of state services for all citizens. This gave rise to the system of equalization payments to the provinces.

The Conservatives are making a more basic approach towards the same goal of improving the wellbeing of people in the "have-not" provinces. Their concept is to improve the economic climate in less-favored provinces so that these areas will experience accelerated economic development, and thus establish a solid basis for social progress.

This is a convenient, black-and-white comparison but the difference is this sharp only in attitudes. Towards the end of the Liberal tenure, for example, the Grits were being impelled towards the sort of Maritime program the Conservatives have now launched, but their plan was neither so generous nor so obviously applicable to needs in other parts of the country.

For years the Liberals rejected the idea that the Bank of Canada, or alternatively the federal treasury, should in effect become the bank of the provincial governments by underwriting so-called "provincial" resource developments. It established a distinction between projects which were, or were asserted to be, national in character. Like the St. Lawrence Seaway and the trans-Canada pipeline.

The Tories have boldly decided to risk the dangers the Liberals feared. The Maritime power formula opens the door for other provinces' projects. The South Saskatchewan dam, the development of Columbia power, road building and land reclamation are among projects the Maritime formula might fit. As Prime Minister Diefenbaker stated:

"The basic concept and the spirit of this policy will apply wherever a case is made out."

In such a system the desire to excel cannot be encouraged. (What becomes of the concept of excellence?) Parents have been reprimanded for introducing children to books "above their age level," on the ground that they cannot understand every word they read. But who understands every word he reads? We extend our understanding by "teaching beyond ourselves; we learn new words, grasp ideas, and acquire vocabulary partly out of context. The readers in use in most schools are appallingly low in vocabulary, duly repetitive, and devoid of any literary quality whatsoever."

The great word in modern American education is "adjustment"—and always to the mechanical norm. The norm is gregarious; there is constant pressure to "participate"; "togetherness" is the great good. Most children and youth are gregarious, but not all are.

Teachers must not take a special interest in one child or another. (They do because classroom teachers remain to a large degree—to think heaven—incorrigible to the educational practices to which they also are supposed to conform). The practices encourage a curious, detached teacher neutralism. Multiple question examinations (checked by business machines) are introduced for the expressed purpose of ruling out a teacher's prejudices about her pupils—and increasingly in American society any opinion differing from the norm and however reasoned is dubbed a "prejudice."

I greatly fear that this education, as it progresses, will not lead to the fullest development of the individual but to the creation of mass men, in a mass society, with the individual reduced to being a technologically determined function.

This is already creating the split personality—the loss of the real "I," and, of course, a real "you"—which our artists express and our most gifted novelists sensed.

Now the television industry maintains that every home should have three sets. Preferably including one that doesn't work, so that a man can get some reading done.

Whether or not smoking is bad for you seems to depend slightly on what you smoke but even more on what you read.

The date that a child starts to attend school (and increasingly the date that he leaves it) is legally established according to a mechanical calendar date-line. That a child may be able to read and write at five—and many can—will not admit him to a primary school. That he may be inherently able to complete eight grades in six will rarely be allowed to encourage his advancement.

From the moment he enters school he is under the tyranny of the age group, within which he is kept, regardless of his individuality. In most schools children are not encouraged to skip grades, nor permitted to enter classes in a grade above or beneath them. Rarely are children required to repeat a grade or a course. The grade, the age group, and the norm rule.

In such a system the desire to excel cannot be encouraged. (What becomes of the concept of excellence?) Parents have been reprimanded for introducing children to books "above their age level," on the ground that they cannot understand every word they read. But who understands every word he reads? We extend our understanding by "teaching beyond ourselves; we learn new words, grasp ideas, and acquire vocabulary partly out of context. The two wars showed Ulster what wood means to mankind. Like the rest of the British Isles, Ulster was swept clean of grown trees during the two confederations. It seems hard for Canadians to understand that not a single project, from the flimsiest housing development bungalow to the great St. Lawrence seaway itself, can be even started without wood. Wood is to our industry and to our construction what our daily bread is to our bodies.

During the second war Ulster planted 1,000 acres a year. Now 2,500 acres a year are planted, largely with Canadian conifers. It will shortly be upped to 3,000 acres per year.

So while the majority of us look upon forests as scenery and not much else, many parts of the world are facing the facts. The facts are their grandchildren. And their grandchildren will have trees.

The Pack-sack

OR GREGORY CLARK

ULSTER is now importing tree seeds from Alberta and British Columbia and tenderly nursing them to seedlings and planting them in the Irish hills and waste lands. Ulster has decided to go in for forests. By the end of this century, they figure, they can have 150,000 acres of Canadian forest in Ulster, which will employ 10,000 Irishmen.

It is small astonishing news items like this that should disturb us Canadians into a reasonable appreciation of our own great blessings. We set fire to 150,000 acres of forest across Canada almost any year. With cigarette butts!

I would like to ask the driver of a green car if they had a good sleep on the night of Nov. 20.
I would like to ask this person how it feels to hit a dumb animal, leaving it in the gutter with an eight-year-old boy crying over it, and not stopping to help.
I don't know all the facts of this case, but it could easily have been a child instead of a mongrel dog.

I would like to ask the driver of a green car if they had a good sleep on the night of Nov. 20.
How do you tell a dog to stay on the sidewalk (if any)?
How do you tell a dog the rules and regulations of humans?

How can you tell an eight-year-old boy, "Eat your supper, son, it was only a dog that was hit, not the friend that slept on the foot of your bed, not the friend that shared your meals, not the friend that would greet you with a wagging stub tail, and a kiss, not the friend that only asked love and friendship?" when the question is: "Why?"

Stop the Upswing

It appears increasingly evident that the welfare of this democratic nation rests, to a great extent, upon the goodwill of the heads of the labor unions.

These highly-paid bosses act as petty dictators and accordingly, in their efforts to prove to their members their worth by their actions, set their minds to a one-way policy of continued demands for higher pay and shorter hours.

The average member of these unions does little, if any, thinking for himself and is more than content to agree to making such demands for his personal benefit, without giving much thought to the exigencies of the business or trade which employs him.

It is only at such times as he is unemployed that he is disturbed about his future, but even then, little thought is accorded either to his employers or the country which enables him to live in such an easy democratic manner.

Few nations, if any, can maintain their standard of economy without being directly affected by the economic conditions in other countries, and as most of these countries have lower wage levels and living standards, their goods and commodities can be marketed at a lower rate than those of a country such as Canada or the United States.

We can protect the high prices for our goods internally by placing protective tariffs on the import of similar goods from low-wage countries, but in order to dispose of our surpluses abroad at competitive prices, there are three alternatives: reduce the cost of production, have other countries raise their wages to our level, or obtain government subsidies. The granting of such subsidies would entail increased taxation, and in due course, further demands for higher pay.

To keep our democratic way of living we must stop the labor unions from controlling the nation and arrest the continual upswing of prices and wages.

Labor should bear in mind that its first duty is to its employer and secondly to its unions, not vice-versa.

Opening for Industry

Instead of closing down the Britannia copper mines a "Sheffield plate" industry could overcome a vexing problem for thousands. If not millions. With the invention of electro-plating, it is a rare bit of luck today to come on a genuine Sheffield plate article.

Just at this time of our Christmas activities a roaring business could be done in household articles and especially in tea sets, which are a rare sight even on the tables of the richest.

If prices could be kept down to the level of even the poorest, there is no reason why "Sheffield plate" articles could not become one of Canada's main industries.

I humbly lay my views before those who have the weighty problems of our government and especially of meeting the unemployment question.

The process of Sheffield plate is simply and concisely given in my edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica and the younger generation would be delighted to try out the process for themselves and so many a young man can start himself in business, and a most lucrative business at that.

In Appreciation

On behalf of the members of the women's auxiliary of the Multiple Sclerosis Society, I wish to thank the Junior Solarium League for donating the space for a booth at their Christmas bazaar held in the Bay Street Armory on Saturday, Nov. 16. Reds Use Ghosts To Keep in Swing

MOSCOW (CP)—The Literary Gazette accused a small group of Soviet popular song writers yesterday of using ghost writers to compose their melodies.

A Leningrad composer, it said, would telephone a ghost writer in Moscow and whistle a theme. Back would come the finished product, fully scored and orchestrated.

One of the sadder consequences of the practice, the Literary Gazette said, was the fact that so many Russian popular tunes sounded similar—they were all done by the same small group of ghost writers, called "negrotes" in Russian slang, who served more than one composer.

Triple Role Triumph

Unknown 'Eve' Becomes Star

By BRUCE LOWTHER

A movie newcomer becomes a star in "The Three Faces of Eve," a highly interesting movie which opened at the Royal Theatre yesterday.

She is Joanne Woodward, playboy, dowdy housewife, small but important role in the recent "No Down Payment." In "Eve" she scores a personal triumph in the improbable but true story of a Georgia woman with three personalities.

First, there is Eve White, the dowdy housewife; second, there is Eve Black, the brassy and bad; third, there is Jane the mature, balanced personality.

Johnson makes the story believable in a producing-directing-writing role, but even so, without Miss Woodward's great acting, and an assist from Lee J. Cobb as the psychiatrist, it may not have come off.

Giant New Freighter Leaves

Bain Collet, Victoria, B.C. 7
Saturday, November 23, 1957

She's Big, Fast, Smooth

By COURTNEY TOWER

A giant new freighter that far outclasses even the better freighters that put in here, and can certainly outrun them, sailed from Victoria last night with a happy Greek at the helm.

The ship was the Kavodoro, a "super cargo boat" that bids well to push up-of-the-mill vessels such as Liberty ships into extinction. And that suits Captain D. Mandarakis just fine.

About the biggest lumber carrier to arrive at this port, the Japan, and designed by an American. She is owned by a Montreal firm, South Atlantic Transport Corp. She sails under Liberian registry, and has a Greek crew.

This leaves her foredeck completely clear for cargo. Her capacity is 8,500,000 feet of lumber, compared with about 5,000,000 for a Liberty ship.

Other interesting details are that she is a whopping 521 feet long, of 10,121 tons gross tonnage and her 8,200 horsepower steam turbines can whisk her along at a maximum 20 knots. Cruising speed is 18.2 knots and Capt. Mandarakis has had her up to 18.7 "to avoid a typhoon."

The captain, a genial pepper-and-salt-haired gentleman, reports the Kavodoro is the seventh ship of her kind to be turned out by Japan and the best he's ever been connected with.

He had been mate and captain on Liberty ships since 1942, except for two years of being master of a tanker, and he wasn't very happy with either

THIS IS DIFFERENT

"But this is different . . . this is the kind of ship everyone should sail," Capt. Mandarakis said. He was in his lounge, where beautiful Japanese workmanship was evident, down to light wood paneling and fine tapestries. Also on the wall were paintings of Andros, his home town in Greece.

Leaving Victoria earlier in the day for Vancouver was the Shunmei Maru, a Japanese freighter that is similar in construction but about 30 feet shorter and about 2,000 fewer gross tons.

FIRST TIME HERE

The Kavodoro had already made her maiden voyage to Vancouver, but this was the first time she had been seen here.

She loaded 525,000 feet of lumber here. She'll take on more at Vancouver and at Crotton and then sail to New York.

After that—"Who knows . . . we go where we are sent and we carry what we are ordered to carry." But Capt. Mandarakis obviously wasn't perturbed. Sailing anywhere in that boat would be a pleasure.

School Children Exploited Says Parent-Teacher Body

Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council last night went felt the selling was too drawn on record as opposing the sale out," Mrs. Thompson said.

"We also felt there was too much competition in the schools because of the magazine selling plan used in six senior and junior high schools because it through the prizes offered," she said.

NOT NECESSARY

The council also said that the PTA's are working for the schools to provide things not given by the school board.

The money gained through the sale of magazine subscriptions is also used for such things as team sweaters, band instruments and school crests.

"The children are going around the same districts we think it is commercial."

Mrs. Thompson said.

NOT IN FAVOR

Mrs. A. B. Thompson, past president of the council said the members felt most parents are not in favor of the plan.

'Two Quarts an Hour'!

Testimony of one police constable apparently was one of the drivers involved for the prosecution, and too much for the defence, in a trial steady on his feet, and his breath smelled of liquor. Const. Ward asked if accused had been drink-

When normally he would have cross-examined the witness, Mr. Proudfoot rose and told Magistrate Henry Hall:

"In view of the testimony of Const. Ward concerning conversations with accused, we wish to change the plea to one of guilty."

The revised plea was accepted, and Finlan was fined $250 and remanded to Nov. 28 for a probation report on disposition of his driver's licence.

Const. Ward told the court he'd attended an accident at about 6:30 p.m. Nov. 2 at Cook

WHAT PART OF YOUR HOUSEHOLD DOLLAR PAYS FOR ELECTRICITY?

Considering the cost of most things today, very little of your household budget is put aside for electricity. It is true that most electricity bills are higher than they used to be, but our average residential customer who is using nearly three times as much electricity as in 1946, is now paying less per kilowatt hour. You can figure for yourself what part of your own household dollar is spent on the electricity you use. What else in your home does so much and costs so little?

Goodbye, frayed driving nerves—good riddance to cold-weather stalling! Last winter tens of thousands of B.C. drivers tested Chevron Gasolines with DMF—proved that they guard against the tiny ice crystals that form around the throttle valve when ordinary gasoline vaporizes. So fill up today with Chevron Supreme or Chevron Regular—(both with DMF)—and discover the tested answer to winter stalling!

Judge Considers 'Woodshed' Cure

WINNIPEG (UPI)—Winnipeg juvenile court Judge Emerson J. Heaney is considering the "woodshed method" of treatment for some types of juvenile offenders.

When asked yesterday if he envisioned the strap, Judge Heaney said, "Just call it the woodshed and people will know what is meant."

"In some cases . . . and I mean some . . . measure in special cases we may have to resort to the good old woodshed method, under the supervision of the court," he said.

Hubcap Thief Under Bond

Suspended sentence of six months was given by Justice J. A. Wright to a 21-year-old who was sentenced to prison by city police court to pay $1000 fine of tax evasion charges. Magistrate H. G. Head held that a suspended sentence would be more effective than imprisonment. The man, of 1050 3rd Street, was charged with having concealed his tax return for 1956. He paid $2000 bond and was released on bail until Dec. 24. The trial date was set for Jan. 24.

Edward R. C. Tomlinson, the accused, had been charged with tax evasion in 1955.

Complainant was Lorna D. M. Leland, 719 Cook, who testified that accused struck her several times before separating from her.

In a second proceeding yesterday, Justice A. G. G. MacLean of Langford was fined $250 for failing to comply with regulations for property on the ocean Road.

MacLean, after penalty was imposed, was ordered to pay $1000 to provincial fire services.

Herring Bite for Gorge Anglers

Although fishing is not quite as good as in the spring herring fishermen are having lots of fun at the Gorge. They are landing the tasty little fish, three and four at a time using their long poles and jigs lines—but they have to put the fish in cellophane bags as they are caught to protect them from

Seventy-one-year-old Edwin Freeman is one of the oldest who gather under the Gorge Bridge at Tillicum to fish for herring.

It's not as big as the coho which won her a Colonist King Fisherman coho contest, but Mrs. Laoma Larson is proud of her catch.

Just right for breakfast, says William Cozens, 70, as he takes one of the shiny fish off the hook and prepares to catch another.

$800 in Sock
For Needy
At Christmas

The Daily Colonist's "500 Christmas Fund" took its biggest single-day jump yesterday, nearing $800 with several weeks to go.

However, that still is only $1.60 for each of the 500 neediest families in Greater Victoria, where each "bonus" cheque sent out just before Christmas last year stood at $14.50.

Twenty-three boys will assist as helpers. All the money is being used to assist the children of the Victoria Boys' Club, making out in various ways and taking care of other cases as no adults work on the committee. The 500 cases are chosen from among the 1,000 cases in Victoria. The den were chosen from among 10,000 cases as 10 per cent of the cases with a year of income of $1,500.

They are Tom Rogers, 3034 Douglas; Herman Horrens, 3038 Cedar Hill Road; Joe Pratt, 319 St. Charles; Tim Wright, 1236 Faithful; Eddie Simpson, 6490 Reitern; Ron Freethy, 218 Central Hill; Celia, 820 Lansdowne; Bennett Dawson, 656 Raymond; Bill McReadie, 3001 East; Ron McDearmid, 1220 Waverley; Dave Webster, 879 St. Pauls; and Doug Bonen, 2835 Princess.

These boys represent virtually all districts in Greater Victoria.

Donations totalled $241 yesterday and included such names from the Victoria Girls' Drill Corps.

Members of the above organization, appearing yesterday to provide extra cash to help the campaign for the day, have pleasure in announcing the sum of $70 toward that end and sincerely wish you every success in your wonderful endeavor. Signed Ames Kehler, senior officer.

Donations should be mailed to the 500 Christmas Fund, The Daily Colonist, 266 Douglas or taken to the newspaper's offices there or to the post office box at 215 Broad. They are open from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays for the campaign.

NANAIMO — School children in Nanaimo are making more use of the public library to get away from television. Students have found in many cases that home studies are disturbed by television and are taking their books to the library on Wallace Street.

"We would like to have a proper study room for them," said Bill Taggart, of the Vancouver Island Regional Library board. "Facilities are inadequate in the present building." He hopes to see a study room incorporated in the proposed new library.

NANAIMO — Second semester and entering in the Nanaimo area two days occupied during the early hours of Friday when bungles visited Radio Station Victoria Road. They escaped with a small amount of money from a pauses.

Queen's Shoemaker Predicts New Styles

SYDNEY, Australia (WNS) Jean Simmons and Rita Hay - Queen Elizabeth's personal worth shoemaker Edward Rayne who makes shoes for rates actress Vivien Leigh as all women members of the Royal family, is on a world tour to show shoe styles to be displayed in London, Paris, New York and Sydney in 1958.

He arrived with bad news. He said Australian women would have to discard the whole of their shoe wardrobe early next year if they did not want to look hopelessly old fashioned.

Among the 90 different styles Rayne showed here were some that the Queen wore during her visit to the United States and Canada.

Shoes shown by Rayne had elegant pointed toes and slim heels. Toes of the shoes were closed and the backs open.

Maximum heel height was 2½ inches.

"This definitely is the shoe of the future," said Rayne displaying a closed toe, open back model. "It's the most revolutionary fashion change since the New Look of 1947. Beginning in the autumn next year, it is not lack of time that triggers self-neglect, but lack of management.

Voice of One

By Frank S. Morley

A Real Revival

Anyone who does not know that a real revival of religion is taking place in this country and the United States must be dead. Undoubtedly there are weaknesses and follies but all great movements have them.

Some people criticize the revival of religion as shallow. Have they read Nygren or Tillich or Brunner or Barth or Van Til or Niebuhr or Temple and scores of other scholars? Never in the Christian church have we had such a magnificent body of mountain-high thinkers.

Lay Leaders

A remarkable feature of the revival is the lay leadership. Business men and politicians are sacrificially and enthusiastically active. More and more religion and life are integrated. For a small picture of the astounding work being done by the Christian church through the world read "This Revolutionary Faith" by Floyd Shacklock (Friends' Press, New York).

Noson has science been so deeply religious? Are you not encouraged by the profound testimony of men like Jeanne Edington and Compton? Or by Einstein's unflinching dedication for the church? "We at last deserved it now praise unsparingly."

Intelligentsia

Elton Trueblood maintains that a genuine religious revival must have the support of the intelligentsia. Surely then he must be impressed with Maxwell Anderson's account of how he came to accept Christianity in "Journey to Jerusalem" and Paul Elmer More's "The Sceptic's Approach to Religion".

Whichever in "Adventure of Ideas" described the teachings of Christ as having enveloped mankind with its most precious instrument, William Lyon Phelps stated that an outstanding feature of twentieth century drama has been "the notable increase in the use of the Bible as dramatic material."

Bible Study

The great novels of today are steeped in religious themes. We have writers like T. S. Eliot, C. S. Lewis, Marta Dorothy Sayers, Barbara Ward and Arnold Toynbee.

Every genuine religious revival has been accompanied by the rediscovery and intensive study of the Bible. It is estimated that there are two billion copies of the Bible today compared with six million a century ago but we also have brilliant new translations and such valuable commentaries as "The Interpreter's Bible". One of the most fascinating books I've ever read was "The Bible as History".

Preference

So Business Week points out that the public shows a significant preference for "study" bibles over "show" bibles."

But nothing demonstrates more clearly the revival of religion than the growth of personal groups for study and prayer. Every minister should thoroughly digest the remarkable description of this movement in "Spiritual Revival Through Personal Groups" edited by John C. Clark (Association Press, New York).

A few months ago the Rev. Dr. F. E. James and Rev. Len Lovard, who deserve a special credit, organized a group of young people to witness to Jesus Christ and His Kingdom. This month they will be in Ottawa.

However, the past 10 years have been devoted primarily to architectural lighting such as the Coronation lighting display in Ottawa in 1953 and during the recent Royal Visit to Canada.

LEADING AUTHORITY

Mr. Adams recognized as leading authority in his field has been working with design for 30 years in nearly 30 cities of the world.

His largest project which is considered a class by itself is the illumination of Niagara Falls calculated to go into operation next fall.

SPECIAL UNITS

The installation includes specially designed units with each flood light panel to fit a beam of 40,000 candle power providing 100 per cent.

Asked if his new home in Toronto boasted architectural lighting Mr. Adams confessed that the use of the stormwater system being the worst snow I saw haven't had time to get down to it.

TV TALK

By Bruce Lowther

Time for the opposition to speak! Dear Mr. Lowther, I have disagreed with your ericlast many times but this is it. We wondered what you would say about Sunday's GM show and rather thought it would be beyond your comprehension. We sat delighted for two hours, and what's more times since. Yours in dignitely.

Thanks to Gwen Solborn, 1529 Mt. Douglas Crossroad for speaking her mind. Not enough people do that.

Montreal Canadiens, without the Rocket made one of their two TV appearances this season on CBS today & a good day for TV also includes the Ethel Barrymore "command appearance," an exhibition of snooker, "Little Kidnap pers" "Robinson Crusoe" and Victoria the Great." Two new shows appear and two old shows return details below.

By way of a Thursday preview, "The Innocent Years" again proved that Project 20 is the best of the TV documentaries. It should be shown more frequently.

TV BITS: The timing on the two hour "live" version of "Annie Get Your Gun" on NBC Wednesday is so tight that costars Mary Martin and John Raitt will be motored from set to set in golf carts. Sal Mineo may win the title role in the February special "Aladdin" ... Marian Anderson's world tour will be shown in a Dannes Kava type telecast Dec. 30. Jimmy "Huck Finn" Boyd has been added to the cast of Date With the Angels. BRTC-TV which decided last week to choose programs "nearer to the forefront of intellectual thought" has added Perry Como to its schedule.

The Thomas Alva Edison Foundation has decided it will not give any awards for best children's show this year. Playhouse 90 producer Martin Manulis has been given a contract to produce movies for 20th Century Fox. Liloys of London has issued a $200,000 insurance policy on the life of George "Superman" Reeves. Roman Catholic Church is considering naming St. Clare of Assisi as the patron saint of TV. Some 700 years ago, she was dying in Rome and was too sick to attend midnight mass more than a mile away. She called to God for help and, witnesses swore, "saw" the entire mass in her tiny room.

'Plates' Slogan Urged

A "catchy slogan" on B.C. car licence plates to advertise the province wherever motorists travel is the goal of the Chamber of Commerce tourist trade group.

Suggestion to have licences display "Sportsman's Paradise" or "Evergreen Playground" or other slogans along the lines adopted in some states was approved principle by the group last night and will be forwarded to the directors.

Vancouver Board of Trade has already gone on record favoring a "dressing up" of plates, and it was suggested that the two organizations work together.

CALGARY (CP) — Seventy delegates from across Alberta and from the Peace River area of British Columbia will meet here Tuesday for the 35th annual convention of the Alberta Wheat Pool. The meeting is expected to last nine days.
